THE KENTUCKY STATE GUARD AND THE EN-ROLLED MILITIA .- In these days of excitemen and danger, the objects of our military organiza tion see:n to be mainly overlooked. While the patriotic ardor of some of our citizens is urging them to the formation of corps of "Minute Men," their eager haste induces them to look beyond the object at which they aim, and in their desire to servo the State during the coming crisis, they rush frantically into the field, and, overleaping both the State Guard and Enrolled Militia, place themselves amid t that reserve force composed of the women, the children, and the veterans of former wars. They seem to forget that if the seck the tented field, their most direct road lie through the Kentucky State Guard. They are the true "Minnte Men" of the State. We do not see its members, urged by the feverish excitement of a momentary cuthusiasm, needlessly vaunting their attachment to the country and their desire to defend it. But instead we see in them a body of cool and earnest men, fully aware of the duties of patri otism, demonstrating their attachment to their country in a practical way by curolling their name amongst the active defenders of the Stato. Their nctions speak a louder patriotism than all the oratory of all the so called "Minute Men" in the land. We advise the letter to imitate the worth example of the members of the State Guard by placing themselves by the side of those citizen whose sence of duty finds its interpretation in on the extreme Northern frontier. their constant readiness for any service which the State muy call upon them to perform. The country desires no better "minute men" than thos gallant citizen soldiers.
